Lecture Notes on Applied Linguistics Ali Alhaj,2015-12-01 Linguistics can be defined as the scientific study of a language any language by virtue of description and analysis a major concept introduced by the Swiss linguist Ferdinand de Saussure 1857 1913 one of the pioneering early exponents of modern linguistics According to him the one and the only correct subject of linguistics is language which involves in itself for the sake of itself Al Saaran 1962 p 49 Some enormous attempts were made by Dr Mohamoud Al Sa aran to explain and interpret F D Saussure s working words on linguistics in this context as he points out The researcher of a language studies a language for its sake Also she he studies it as it appears without any oscillation The researcher has no right to confine herself himself to explaining and investigating only one aspect of a language by reason of her his highly commendation and to abandon the other attempts to explore the other aspect of language recklessly and wildly because of her his disapproval and disapprobation as well as her his frivolity of it Furthermore she he acts according to her his own desire or for any other reason Ibid p 51 On his turn Al Sa aran also explains the working words of F D Saussure for its own sake by saying that the researcher studies language objectively in order to explore and probe its reality She he does not aim at achieving for instance either pedagogical objectives or any working goals Fittingly the researcher does not study language in order to enhance and to correct one of its aspects or to make any other amendments on it But she he has to confine herself himself to describing and analyzing language objectively Ibid p 51
