Fiscal Regimes for Extractive Industries—Design and Implementation International Monetary Fund. Fiscal Affairs Dept., 2012-08-16. Better designed and implemented fiscal regimes for oil, gas, and mining can make a substantial contribution to the revenue needs of many developing countries while ensuring an attractive return for investors, according to a new policy paper from the International Monetary Fund. Revenues from extractive industries (EIs) have major macroeconomic implications. The EIs account for over half of government revenues in many petroleum-rich countries and for over 20 percent in mining countries. About one third of IMF member countries find or could find resource revenues macro-critical, especially with large numbers of recent new discoveries and planned oil, gas, and mining developments. IMF policy advice and technical assistance in the field has massively expanded in recent years, driven by demand from member countries and supported by increased donor finance. The paper sets out the analytical framework underpinning and key elements of the country-specific advice given. Also available in Arabic.
