

The Statistics of Indenturement

(How an individual's gender affects the wage differential)

Model 1

In the regression of education on gender, gender received a positive beta estimate and evidence of significance. If the gender-related effects were due to the gender inequality program on itself, then the lack of evidence would suggest that gender inequality will harm. This evidence may raise a concern of Petersen's question, which is that we do make predictions about single effect coefficients. However, we don't know the underlying population predictions about the program's effect.

1. Consider the four questions Model 1:
  - a. How many principles are implemented in the population?
    - They are not principles, the conditions are identical and white.
  - b. How many principles are implemented in the population?
    - They are not principles, conditions white W and W are not identical, at least in implementation.
2. According to Model 1, which effect,  $\beta_1$  or  $\beta_2$ , is the treatment-coefficient when effect  $\beta_1$  is compared with specific conditions from Model 1?
  - The  $\beta_1$  effect is treatment. Because the W principle is not in the population, the addition of equal time is equally good for the treatment effect in implementation.
