Communicate Strategies For International Teaching Assistants

Communicate Jan Smith, Colleen M. Meyers, Amy J. Burkhalter, 1992 Without being field specific this text covers language methodology culture etc that foreign teaching assistants need to be successful teachers

Communicate Jan Smith, Smith International a Staff, 1994-08-01 This text combines work on teaching language and cross cultural communication skills related to teaching regardless of the ITA's field Each of the ten units centers around a rhetorical teaching task common in U S university classes Teaching skills sections include rationale focus functional language assignment practice assignments and feedback forms Language skills sections include grammar and pronunciation The appendix includes field specific undergraduate textbook materials for language and teaching practice

Instructor's Manual to Accompany Communicate Jan Smith, Colleen M. Meyers, Amy J. Burkhalter, 2007

Teaching Matters Teresa Pica, Alexis Gerard Finger, 1990

Strategies for Teaching Assistant and International Teaching Assistant Development Catherine Ross, Jane Dunphy, 2007-10-12 Written for anyone who works with graduate students to support their teaching efforts in American research universities this book draws on the extensive experience of professional educators who represent a variety of programs throughout the United States They understand the common constraints of many TA development classes workshops and programs as well as the need for motivating and sophisticated techniques that are at the same time practical and focused Their contributions to this book have proven to be effective in developing the sophisticated communication skills required by TAs across the disciplines

An Investigation of Communication Patterns and Strategies Between International Teaching Assistants and Undergraduate Students in University-level Science Labs Barbara Elas Gourlay, 2008

A Transdisciplinary Approach to International Teaching Assistants Stephen Daniel Looney, Shereen Bhalla, 2019-09-26 North American universities depend on international teaching assistants ITAs as a substantial part of the teaching labor force which has led to the idea of an ITA problem a deficiency model which is framed as a divergence between ITAs linguistic competence and undergraduates and their parents expectations This outdated positioning of ITAs as deficient diminishes the invaluable role they play within the academy This book argues instead for an approach to ITA which recognizes them as multilingual skilled migrant professionals who participate in and are discursively constructed through various participant frameworks modalities and activities The chapters in this volume offer state of the art research into ITA using a variety of methods and approaches and as such constitute a transdisciplinary perspective which argues for the importance of dialogue between research and practice

Teaching American Students Ellen Sarkisian, 1997 Many faculty and graduate students from other countries expect language difficulties when they teach but are unprepared for other surprises different cultures make different assumptions about the academic background of college students how students learn the appropriate roles of teachers and students and even the fundamental purpose of a college education The third edition of Teaching American Students explains the expectations of undergraduates at American colleges and universities and offers practical strategies for teaching including how to give clear presentations how to teach interactively and how to communicate effectively Also included are illustrative examples as well as advice from international faculty and teaching assistants Appendices offer concrete suggestions on topics from planning the first day of class to grading papers and problem sets

Teaching Matters Keith Selkirk,1984 Communication Channel Preferences of International Teaching Assistants Xuan Huang,2005 Talking Matters: Research on Talk and Communication of International Teaching Assistants Greta Gorsuch Ph D,2015-06-24 International Teaching Assistants are largely Chinese Indian and Korean biology chemistry math and physics graduate students in the U S and Canada who are supported by teaching undergraduate courses in their areas of study In 2010 their numbers increased to 242 061 in the U S and they comprised 15 5% of all graduate students Many undergraduate science math and engineering courses are taught by ITAs Indeed ITAs make undergraduate education possible and as instructional faculty are active contributors to the learning of North American undergraduates ITAs teach in English which is often their second language This presents formidable challenges for ITAs ability to engage in sustained talk and communication as they explain difficult content and manage classrooms in an educational culture different from their own Talking Matters authors take ITA research into new areas using new perspectives with the purpose of improving the communication skills of ITAs and undergraduates thus enhancing undergraduate learning outcomes The book 1 Showcases recent applied research on the professional talk and communication of ITAs and their interactions with undergraduates 2 Was developed for on the ground use by ITA educators faculty members in academic departments and other staff members charged with ITA support 3 Includes In a Nutshell sections which highlight action points that can be taken on the basis of each chapter s findings and recommendations 4 Provides photocopyable learning materials offered by chapter authors

COMPETENCE IN CLASSROOM: THE EXPERIENCES OF INTERNATIONAL TEACHING ASSISTANTS Elif

Bengü,2020-01-20 At the time I was writing my dissertation I was a student at University of Cincinnati University of Cincinnati has had an established program for teaching assistants since 1993 however at the time I was there I observed the need for the component for international teaching assistants in the program That need guided my dissertation and this book When revisiting the manuscript and preparing the publication my aim was to offer something tangible and useful for higher education institutions I currently work as part of a higher education institution too and reading my dissertation after twelve years I realize that communicative competence is still a valid topic and that it can guide higher education institutions

Greta Gorsuch,Colleen M. Meyers, Lucy Pickering,Dale T. Griffiee,2012-06-01 The International Teaching Assistant

Sarah Lee Briggs,1997 Supporting Communication Disorders Gill Thompson,2003 First Published in 2003 Routledge is an

imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company The Needs and Challenges of International Teaching Assistants (ITAs) in the U.S. Classroom and the Effective and Professional Training Strategies for ITAs Xinran Wang,2022 The United States has been the most popular destination for international students to pursue their academic goals due to its quality of the higher education system welcoming culture and relatively open labor market after they graduate Zong Batalova 2018 Meanwhile the international students have brought a diverse culture to higher education and contributed to the U S economy It is common for U S universities to hire international graduate students as teaching or research assistants to teach fundamental courses for undergraduates which releases the financial pressure on the universities and faculties teaching load However international teaching assistants ITAs face various difficulties in teaching and learning The researcher as an ITA has overcome the dilemma of language barriers pedagogy methods and social cultural issues during the years of graduate study and training This study contains the researcher s individual experience and aims to explore the needs and challenges of the ITA group in American university classrooms For instance lacking communication capacity and pedagogical strategies adapting the differences of education systems between home countries and the U S balancing the research and teaching tasks According to the interviews with several ITA participants this study summarized the similarities and differences of their teaching needs and difficulties in the classroom including their pressure on curriculum and research limited assistance from departments faculty members and other organizations on the campus especially transferring remote teaching and lacking mental support during the COVID 19 pandemic The study collected participants thoughts and suggestions on teaching reflection time management and professional development to support the ITA group and related training program on linguistic pedagogy and social cultural aspects Achieving Mutual Understanding Shiao-Yun Chiang,2003

International Teaching Assistants In The Us University Classroom Erhan Aslan,2016 The analysis of the qualitative data revealed that the situational context of instruction determined the particular communication patterns in different disciplines specifically the impact of threat posed to the negative and positive face of the discourse participants Additionally in conjunction with the quantitative findings while the ITAs seemed to be generally willing to interact with students teacher fronted talk in the form of delivering lectures and self talk especially in large classes was found to be anxiety inducing for some of them Length of residence and opportunities for communication seemed to influence the process of adjustment and acquisition of the classroom pragmatic norms Finally ITAs perceptions and beliefs about appropriateness seemed to affect their pragmatic performance in the classroom More specifically ITAs perspectives on education and communication such as moderating the power variable in class and building rapport and interpersonal relationships with students through casual talk seemed to guide their choices of pragmlinguistic forms and politeness strategies The study offered a number of implications for ITA research and training Speaking Skills Or Communication? Harlow Stewart Sanders,2014 The researcher conducted a hierarchical linear modeling HLM analysis of 2 688 online mid semester surveys of the students of international teaching assistants ITAs at the University of Missouri using eight independent variables IVs and overall teaching effectiveness as the dependent variable DV The researcher s hypothesis held that contrary to the common perception speaking skills one of the eight IVs would prove not to be the most important component of an ITA s overall teaching effectiveness Hypothesis confirmed the researcher conducted 12 additional T tests HLM and ANOVA analyses to determine the IVs most strongly associated with the DV in such disaggregations of the data as ITAs grouped by TA role by language level and by language culture The analyses consistently showed communication of subject matter as the most important IV speaking skills never ranking higher than third in importance among the eight IVs tested The researcher also conducted a qualitative analysis of the verbal survey data to divine the survey respondents definition of communication of subject matter
