Biologically Inspired Robotics Yunhui Liu, Dong Sun, 2017-12-19. Robotic engineering inspired by biology/biomimetics has many potential applications: robot snakes can be used for rescue operations in disasters; snake-like endoscopes can be used in medical diagnosis; and artificial muscles can replace damaged muscles to recover the motor functions of human limbs. Conversely, the application of robotics technology to our understanding of biological systems and behaviors, biorobotic modeling and analysis, provides unique research opportunities. Robotic manipulation technology with optical tweezers can be used to study the cell mechanics of human red blood cells; a surface electromyography sensing system can help us identify the relation between muscle forces and hand movements; and mathematical models of brain circuitry may help us understand how the cerebellum achieves movement control.

Biologically Inspired Robotics contains cutting edge material considerably expanded and with additional analysis from the 2009 IEEE International Conference on Robotics and Biomimetics (ROBIO). These 16 chapters cover both biomimetics and biorobotic modeling/analysis, taking readers through an exploration of biologically inspired robot design and control, micro/nano/bio-robotic systems, biological measurement and actuation, and applications of robotics technology to biological problems. Contributors examine a wide range of topics, including: A method for controlling the motion of a robotic snake; The design of a bionic fitness cycle inspired by the jaguar; The use of autonomous robotic fish to detect pollution; A noninvasive brain activity scanning method using a hybrid sensor; A rehabilitation system for recovering motor function in human hands after injury; Human-like robotic eye and head movements in human-machine interactions. A state-of-the-art resource for graduate students and researchers.

The Influence of Room Acoustics on Solo Music Performances Zora Schärer Kalkandjiev, 2015-11-19. This book addresses the question of how musicians are influenced by their room/acoustical environment when playing on a concert hall stage. Even though the concept of adapting a music performance to room acoustics is often taken for granted by musicians, it is unclear if and how such adjustments take place in practice, and which aspects of room acoustics play a role in this context. Empirical investigations in both real world and simulated concert halls are presented in the book to shed light on the question. A case study with a cellist performing in European concert halls as well as a laboratory study with musicians playing in virtual room acoustical environments simulated by means of dynamic binaural synthesis were conducted Both investigations make use of room acoustical computer models to determine the room acoustical conditions typically encountered by musicians on stage Software based performance analysis is employed to quantify musically and perceptually relevant aspects of performance The influence of diverse room acoustical parameters on numerous performance characteristics is investigated with the statistical methods of multilevel regression models

Listening with Two Ears - New Insights and Perspectives in Binaural Research Huiming Zhang, Yi Zhou, Lina Reiss, 2023-11-27 Hearing is dependent on neural processing of acoustic cues obtained by the left and right ears Neural signals driven by the two ears are integrated at multiple levels of the central auditory system which enables animals including humans to perform various functions including localization of a sound source A natural listening environment typically contains sounds from multiple sources These sounds can have different spectral and temporal features and occur at either the same or different time Integration can happen among neural signals elicited by the same or different sounds The way of integration can greatly affect how individual sounds are sensed and perceived Functions such as auditory grouping and stream segregation which are central to establishing coherent auditory images in a complex listening environment are highly dependent on the way of integration Binaural hearing is complicated by individual differences and developmental changes in head and pinna shape size as binaural cues can be affected by these differences and changes Furthermore neural processing of binaural cues can be influenced by hearing impairments and the use of hearing aids and cochlear implants These factors likely require a listener to optimize the use of binaural cues through learning and to use plastic changes in the nervous system to perform the optimization Great strides have been made in understanding binaural processing in normal and impaired auditory systems This Research Topic aims to highlight some of the latest findings in the following areas 1 Animal behavioral and human psychoacoustical studies of binaural hearing 2 Neural encoding and processing of binaural cues and structural as well as neurophysiological bases of such encoding and processing 3 Contribution of binaural neural processing to auditory functions such as sound source localization binaural fusion binaural interference spatial release from masking auditory grouping and auditory stream segregation 4 Computational models of binaural processing 5 Learning and plastic changes in binaural processing following hearing loss or alterations of acoustic environment and structural as well as physiological bases of these behavioral changes 6 Clinical aspects of binaural processing including application of processing strategies including research on the benefits of bilateral cochlear implantation and the neural correlates thereof
